Motivational Interviewing Taught by NewSchool Training Institute

Motivational interviewing is a client-centered, collaborative style of communication for stimulating intrinsic motivation, enhancing intrinsic motivation, and moving toward behavior change. It is an anti‐dysphoric approach that helps clients to explore, question, and embrace thoughts and behaviors that lead to positive life direction.

The creative arts have such power to reach youth. This month's intervention focuses on music. Please click here for some inspiration.

The suicide rate has increased significantly over the past two decades, with nearly 50,000 people currently dying from suicide each year. In light of COVID-19, the Office of Suicide Prevention has moved all CAMS trainings to a virtual platform. If you are a behavioral health provider interested in participating, sign up now for this free session. Optional continuing education credits (CME, CEU) are available.

Get to Know the Second Wind Fund Staff

SWF staff continues to be here for you! We welcome any thoughts, questions, and concerns.

The question of the month: What are you looking forward to as we transition into fall?

- Chris Weiss - Executive Director
  "I thoroughly enjoy the changing of seasons. Witnessing the leaves transition in fall from greens to yellows, reds, and oranges is one of my favorite parts."

- Kimberlee Bow - Program Director
  "The cool crisp mornings, the sound of crunching leaves, and the colors."

- Mandy McKnight - Controller/Director of Operations
  "Autumn is my favorite season! I love the weather cool-down, the smells, the tastes, the colors, and getting ready for the upcoming holidays...and, my birthday is always a nice bonus.

- Mary Houlihan - Provider Engagement Manager
  "I am looking forward to crisp air and making more hearty meals."

- Elyse Baumgardner - Referral Specialist
  "I'm looking forward to cool weather and Halloween!"
